Proposal to Sell Lower California to the United States—Brewery Purchase.

Pacific Mail's Annual Report—Secretary Blaine and Sir Julian Pauncefote.

By Postal Telegraph.]

New York, May 29—The Hawiian Princess Kalaluoni sailed to-day on the Germania for Liverpool.

THE MANLY ART.

New York, May 29—Billy Myer, from Stratton, Ill., met Billy Madden this morning at the Police Gazette office to make the preliminary arrangements for a finish fight with Jack McAuliffe. It was mutually agreed to have the battle come at the California Athletic Club, and it was decided to telegraph immediately to President Fulda and ask what size purse the Club would offer, and what date would be acceptable. As soon as an answer comes articles of agreement will be drawn up and signed. In case the California Athletic Club refuse to offer at least a $3000 purse the match will be made within two hundred miles of New York.

HEAVY SALE.

New York, May 29—George Bechtel's brewery, at Staten Island, which turns out about one hundred thousand barrels of beer yearly, has been sold to an English syndicate for $1,750,000, a considerable part of which was cash.

P. M. S. S. CO.'S AFFAIRS.

New York, May 29.—The annual report of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company for the year ending April 30, 1889, shows the total earnings to be $4,161,027; expenses, $3,666,160; net, $494,866.

ALL THROUGH DRESS.

Washington, May 29—Gardner Van Ostand, brother of one of the ladies who was imprisoned in Nice during the early part of the month owing to trouble over a dressmaker's bill, called at the State Department to-day and laid the facts before Solicitor Walker Blaine, who assured him that the Department would investigate the matter and have it settled.

BLAINE AND SIR JULIAN.

Washington, May 29—Secretary Blaine gave an excursion down the river yesterday in honor of Sir Julian Pauncefort, the new British Minister. All the cabinet ministers were invited to participate, and there were many diplomats present.

Secretary Tracy to-day completed negotiations with the agents of the Oceanic Steamship Company at San Francisco, by which the company's steamer Alameda will touch at Apia on her way up from Australia and take on board Admiral Kimberley and the remaining officers and men of the wrecked men-of-war, and convey them to San Francisco. The departure of Admiral Kimberley and party from the scene of the recent trouble looks like the ending of the Samoan difficulty.

MORMONS IN NAME ONLY.

Ottawa, May 29.—Reports received here state that the Mormon influx to the Northwest continues. No proof has been obtained that the new arrivals, who already form a considerable colony, are given to the practice of polygamy.

FIRE.

New York, May 28.—J. M. Huber & Co.'s store at 14 Platt street, dealers in paints and colors, was burned to-day; loss $30,000.

OBITUARY.

New Haven, May 29.—Hannah M. Welsh, President of the First National Bank, died suddenly this morning. Aged 76. He was President of the Board of Education for 20 years, the Board of Health twelve years, and mayor of the city from 1869 to 1873, city treasurer several years. He leaves a fortune of a million dollars.

PARALYZED.

Concord, N. H., May 29—Ex-U. S. Senator Rollins had another paralytic stroke and is very low. He intended sailing for Europe on Saturday.

BUYING A PROVINCE.

City of Mexico, May 29—Various questions concerning Lower California have frequently occupied the attention of Congress recently, discussion being carried on in secret session. It was known that a policy of restriction had been introduced to check the influx of miners and strangers from the United States by imposing heavy taxes. Now it is rumored that a proposition to sell the entire peninsula of Lower California to the United States is under consideration and that negotiations to that effect have been going on for some time.

WIGGINS STILL ON DECK.

Ottawa, May 27.—Prof. Wiggins says the present earthquake wave in California will extend southerly to South America. He predicts a big earthquake in Pennsylvania on August 15, 1904. Wiggins has started people talking again. He says his discovery of the recession of the earth from the sun is the greatest discovery of the age. This recession, he says, is proved by what is known as the precession of the equinoxes, which causes the tropical year to be shorter than the sidereal, the latter being the real measure of the earth's increasing orbit. The time, he declares, will come when it will be necessary to carve up the continents by canals, as we see on Mars, and the same is no doubt true of the planets Saturn and Jupiter. Trees will be planted along these canals to produce aerial moisture, as it appears to be along the canals of Mars.

THE ALL ABSORBING QUESTION.

Ottawa, May 19—Minister of Marine and Fisheries, C. H. Tupper, was seen this morning regarding a dispatch from Victoria, B. C., stating that the English flagship Swiftsure and the Amphion had received orders to patrol Behring Sea, said: "If this is true, I do not believe that the matter possesses any special significance. A British squadron is constantly maintained in the North Pacific, and the fact that it undertakes to cruise here or there is in accordance with the usual custom of men-of-war.

SUPREME COURT.

(Before Hon. Justice Crease and a Special Jury)

MAY 27th, 1889.

Dumbleton vs. Gray—The action was brought to recover $1740, claimed to be due by the defendant to the plaintiff, in connection with a dissolution of partnership between them, arranged in August 1887. By counter-claim the defendent contended that the plaintiff was indebted to him in a larger amount. Mr. Hett and Mr. Wilson appeared for the plaintiff, and Mrs. T. Davie and Mr. Bodwell for the defendant.

The cross-examination of the first witness was not concluded when the court adjourned for an hour at half-past one.

Arrival of a Man-of-War.

A Russian man-of-war arrived in Esquimalt harbor this afternoon from the south. As she entered the harbor the flagship dipped her colors and greeted her with the usual salute. She is understood to be the Russian sloop-of-war Kreyser, referred to in our dispatches a few days ago in connection with the accidental burning of the Greek church at San Francisco.

SPORTING NEWS.

Boxing Match—Hammer Throwing—Wrestling—Aquatic.

Geo. Shade and Prof. Foster will give a soft glove exhibition in the Yates street skating ring on Saturday night.

HAMMER THROWING.

John McPherson has challenged D. H. Cameron, on behalf of J. McDougall of New Glasgow, N. S., to a hammer-throwing match for $500 a side, with 12, 14 and 16 pound hammers. It is not known yet whether Cameron will accept or not. He says he has not trained for such contests in two years.

CAMERON-MCPHERSON.

Mr. D. H. Cameron, the noted athlete, is staying at Hastings Hotel, Burrard Inlet, training for the wrestling match between him and McPherson next Saturday p m. The contest will take place on the open sward in front of the hotel. Cameron is not in as good condition as he has been in some previous matches, but expects to be himself by Saturday.

FROM AUSTRALIA.

The Australian correspondent of the London Sporting Life, under date of March 25th, writes: "Matters aquatic are still quiet. Even yet there is no definiteness about the movements of O'Connor. No notice is taken of Termer. Searle would like the American champion to come to Australia and have a burst over the Paramatta. One thing is certain: Searle will not go near American waters to row. Australians are smart enough in all conscience, but they seem to fight shy of dealing with Yankee sportsmen as a woman with a red dress does of a bull. But although he will not go to the States, Searle is, I fancy, inclined to meet O'Connor as far as to row on the Thames. I do not care a straw where the race is rowed. I shall lay my coin on Searle, but I do think a match should be brought about somehow. We have heard so much about O'Connor, that we would like to see him matched against Searle. There is every likelihood that Searle will soon have to answer a challenge from James Stansbury, a young sculler who rowed Searle a great race in February, 1888, before he became champion. Stansbury took part in the Brisbane aquatic carnival, but went wrong internally, owing to the change of climate, and was unable to do himself justice. He is a big, stepping fellow, and I am sure would push Searle. He has much improved lately, especially in the "science" of rowing. Peter Kemp, the ex-champion, has him in hand."

AMERICAN RIFLEMEN FOR ENGLAND.

The Massachusetts Creedmoor rifle team will sail for Europe on June 19th to compete with a crack team of British rifle-shooters. The victories of the Bay Staters last year at Creedmoor and other shoots gave Boston such confidence in the men that a popular subscription was raised to meet the expenses of the coming trip. The team will arrive in New York on June 18th and stop at the Windsor Hotel until the next day, when they will sail on the City of Chicago.

SHADE AND FOSTER.

Prof. Foster states that he deposited a forfeit to spar Geo. Shade with soft gloves for points. This morning he was informed that Shade declined to meet him for points on the grounds that the professor is too well up in the boxing business. The professor intends to claim the forfeit unless Shade carries out his agreement.

A SPURGEON SCANDAL.

Son of the Great Baptist Divine too Familiar With a Lady.

San Francisco, May 28.—An unsavory scandal clouds the visits here of Rev. Ches. Spurgeon, son of the famous Baptist pulpit orator of London. Young Spurgeon arrived here two weeks ago from Australia in company with James Duckworth and wife of Castleton Hall, Rockdale, England. Duckworth is a millionaire mill owner, and took the trip to Australia with his young wife, who is a beautiful English girl, thirty years younger than her husband. Spurgeon met Duckworth in Australia, and through the friendship of Mr. Duckworth for the London preacher they became intimate. On the voyage, which lasted a month, Spurgeon paid so much attention to Mrs. Duckworth as to excite gossip on the ship. When the voyage was about half over, Duckworth protested against his undue familiarities and said he could attend to his wife's comfort without aid. A coolness ensued, but when the party made up here for the Yosemite, Spurgeon was included. In the famous valley his care of Mrs. Duckworth became almost love-like, and Duckworth's jealousy reached a climax at Wawona yesterday on the return journey. He suddenly said to Spurgeon, in the presence of half a dozen witnesses, "I've a great mind to thrash you, sir." At the suggestion of a well-known San Franciscan, it was decided to settle the matter according to Queensbury rules, and the sparring began. Duckworth was too mad to parley, and immediately rushed at Spurgeon. They clinched and were just getting warmed up when Mrs. Duckworth rushed in between them, threw her strong arms around her husband and held him like a vice. Spurgeon escaped to his hotel. Duckworth, breathing vengeance, was arrested for disturbing the peace, but was afterwards liberated, as Spurgeon would not make a charge against him. All returned here to-day, and both parties were very anxious to keep the matter out of the papers, as their friends induced them to become reconciled.

AT THEIR OLD TRICKS.

An Ottawa Celestial Receives a Beating From a Frenchman.

An Ottawa dispatch of a few days since states that the Chinese colony in that city is in a state of great excitement. Sam Lee, a dudish looking Celestial, received numerous sympathetic callers who dropped in to inspect his swollen and blackened head. He received a terrible beating late last night from Hilaire Boucher, a Frenchman, who is now in jail. The Frenchman accuses the Chinaman of debauching his daughter, a good-looking miss of sixteen. The police for a long time suspected that the Chinaman enticed young girls into the house. Girls seen going inside could not be found when the house was raided. The police declared the shop to be a perfect Chinese puzzle. Boucher's daughter left home early last night, her father started to Sam's shop in pursuit, arrived there the girl could not be found, but Sam received a terrible beating instead. His cries attracted the police. A crowd also gathered but did not show any violence. The doctors say the Chinaman will be all right in few days. Leading citizens are aroused over the reports of the conduct of the Celestials here and it would not take any great effort to drive them from the city. Boucher will be tried for assault.

"His pills as thick as hand-grenades flew,
And where they fell as certainly slew."

was said of one of those ignorant doctors in the early times, who might well have been called the side-de-camp of death. The sufferer from scrofula, with sores as foul as Job's, need not now curse the day he was born, for Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will restore health and beauty, appetite and strength. Especially has it manifested its potency in curing salt rheum, fetters, boils, carbuncles, sore eyes, scrofulous sores and swellings, hip joint diseases, white swellings, goitre or thick neck, or enlarged glands. w.e.

FOREIGN DISPATCHES.

Earl of Zetland the New Irish Viceroy—The Paris World's Exposition.

Healy and Biggar Testify Before the Commission—Russian Nihilists Busy.

By Postal Telegraph.]

IRELAND'S NEW VICEROY.

London, May 29—The Earl of Zetland, it is officially announced this morning, has accepted the office of Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland. It is understood he was very unwilling to assume the office and only yielded under strong pressure.

PARNELL'S MISSION.

London, May 29.—Maurice Healy, M. P. for Cork, was placed in the witness box at to-day's sitting of the Parnell Commission. He admitted the National League of Cork had received application from various branches of the league for a list of names of merchants and members of the League in order that all others might be boycotted. In answer to an interrogation, Healy held this practice was legitimate.

Joseph Biggar, M. P. for West Cavan, deposed he was expelled from the supreme council of the Fenians because he advocated constitutional methods. He afterwards joined the league. His speech in 1886, in which he referred to Hartmann, having imitators in Ireland, had been misread. He really only intended to warn the Whigs that the disgust of the people might result in the use of dynamite. He subsequently advised the people to see to it that land was of no value to land grabbers. He also admitted saying that while it was no part of the league to recommend the shooting of landlords, it would defend persons charged with shooting them or their agents. Biggar said he spoke thus because he had no confidence in the administration of law in Ireland. Moreover, he believed the league should defend prisoners when crimes with which they were charged arose from bad laws. He said that Egan and he were trustees of the league's funds. He was unable to associate Egan with the Sheridan outrage.

CHARGES AGAINST LANSDOWNE.

In the course of a debate regarding the Lansdowne evictions in Ireland, Mr. O'Brien levelled serious charges against Lord Lansdowne and Professor Goldwin Smith. After referring to his Canadian visit he said: "If any one wants to follow me on this subject he has only to get up a tribunal of three judges to proceed to Canada and enquire into Lansdowne and crime. (Loud Irish cheers.) I will undertake to give murderous speeches, murderous incitements to violence, and plenty of murderous deeds that make the speeches at Scrabbally harmless indeed. We can do that without forged letters out of the speeches of Lord Lansdowne, Goldwin Smith and a great many other highly sensitive moralists. (Laughter and cheers.) The only argument that Lord Lansdowne offered for himself during my visit to Canada, was the argument of the revolver, shot gun and paving stones fired in the dark. (Cheers.) The Speaker here interrupted and said that Mr. O'Brien had exceeded the scope of the motion. Afterwards Mr. Balfour defended Lord Lansdowne, and said that he was an honorable, straightforward gentleman.

LABOR STRIKES.

Brussels, May 29.—The miner's strike in Serasis District is assuming a very dangerous aspect and the strike is rapidly spreading.

COTTON DESTROYED.

Lubec, May 29.—Cotton to the value of a million and a half marks was destroyed by fire at Dockson on Monday. It is all insured in the United States.

BUSY NIHILISTS.

St. Petersburg, May 29—Police in pursuit of Nihilists throughout the country are continually discovering new details of plots against the Czar's life. Societies with this object exist all over the continent and are in constant communication with each other.

ORDERLY PARIS.

Paris, May 29—The daily average of visitors to the exhibition is now raised to 104,000. Constables have been employed to the number of 700 in the exhibition, but not a single additional police has been put on the regular Paris force. Just now the municipalities have, if anything, less occupation than usual.

No first-class medal will be awarded at the Paris salon this year.

SEMPLE ON ANNEXATION.

Ex-Governor Semple Before the Senatorial Committee.

The Senatorial Committee met at Tacoma last Friday. Ex-Governor Semple, speaking on the subject of annexation said:

"This territory lies along the borders of British Columbia for about 300 miles, and the two people being friendly and intimate, personally, politically and commercially, their intercourse is as unlimited as their opportunities. Speaking the same language and having the same manners and customs, the difference between the people of Washington territory and their neighbors on the north is not much more perceptible than between them and their neighbors in Oregon and Idaho. They freely visit each other and jointly celebrate their anniversaries, very much as though they were brothers, and I believe that in the hearts of the common people, on both sides of the line, there is a desire for the abolition of the present political dissension, and that they may eventually become one people by the peaceful admission of British Columbia into the American Union.'

"The province of British Columbia is more akin to the contiguous territory of the United States than the corresponding provinces on the Atlantic side, for the reason that the original Anglo Saxon settlers of the Pacific coast were the hardy and liberty-loving pioneers of Washington and Oregon, and the adventurous and liberty-loving gold hunters of California, who first congregated in these localities and thence spread out in all directions. They imbued the whole population west of the Rocky mountains with their own chivalric temperament, and the healthy leaven pervades and assimilates the masses to day.

"The difficulties experienced by the Dominion Government in persuading British Columbia to become a member of that union are well known. In fact, it was only effected by promises of material assistance, and after the union was consummated, serious threats of dissolution were heard from this side owing to the non-fulfillment of its stipulations by the Ottawa government. These threats of withdrawal from the Dominion of Canada have always been associated with the idea of attachment with the United States, and we of the Northwest have always been astonished at the apparent lack of susceptibility on the part of Uncle Sam to overtures from so fair a source. This idea must continue to grow and strengthen as the two countries are more closely connected by railways, by commerce, by the thickening of settlements along the borders, and by the intermarriages of their youth."

O'BRIEN'S EVIDENCE.

Illegality Bred in Irishmen—Killing No Murder.

London, May 24.—Before the Parnell commission the cross examination of W. O'Brien was conducted by Attorney-General Webster. Witness said he could not produce any record of the league suppressing branches or protesting against boycotting. He did not consider boycotting unconstitutional. It was simply Irish for blackballing. He drew a distinction between criminality and illegality.

"The Irish," he said, "have an earnest healthy repulsion for criminality. As to illegality, meaning irreverence for the law, illegality is bred in us."

This remark occasioned laughter.

In answer to further questions by the Attorney General, Mr. O'Brien said it was impossible to say what is legal and what is illegal in Ireland. Anything that two resident magistrates say that is law, is law. The league certainly tended to lessen outrage, but no league or human power could prevent crime in such a crisis as that of 1879. He had never advised the people to assist the Government in the detection, because that would be accepting a responsibility that the league wholly repudiated. United Ireland had never denounced secret societies. The league had weaned nineteen-twentieths of the people of Ireland from such societies. Mr. O'Brien admitted writing and printing that Queen Victoria was only known to Ireland by her scarcely decently disguised hatred of Ireland and by her inordinate salary; also that Lord Spencer would be the last strong Englishman that would "attempt to rule Ireland by barbarism, paid perjury, butchery and the use of the sacred rope."

He also admitted writing that the chairman of the committee on reception to the Prince of Wales, on the occasion of the latter's visit to Ireland some years ago, should be hunted from public life. Mr. O'Brien here excitedly exclaimed, "He has been driven from public life, and rather than allow Englishmen to be deceived by a show of sham loyalty I resolved to tell them the truth. I never personally spoke disrespectfully of the Prince of Wales. If," continued the witness, "it is clear that England will not satisfy Ireland's aspirations, and if there is any rational chance of success, an attempt should be made on the part of the Irish to rebel." The articles of United Ireland, referring to the Queen and Prince of Wales, were, in the witness opinion, justifiable in the present state of the relations. British rule as then administered was hateful.

The Attorney-General referred to the Manchester murder, and mentioned Messrs. Allen, Larkett and O'Brien as the murderers of the killed in the riot at Manchester.

Mr. O'Brien—"They were murderers, but were engaged in open warfare, and shot the policemen by accident."

The Attorney-General—"Is the general shooting of policemen accidental warfare?"

O'Brien—"It was not criminal in this case. The men who openly take risks to relieve their comrades are no more murderers than anyone present here who would have acted from the noblest motives."

The witness then stated that he wrote an article in which he said that the martyrs Larken and O'Brien were honored by their Chicago kindred. This statement was greeted with rousing cheers from the spectators present. Presiding Justice Hannen thereupon threatened to clear the court room if such demonstrations were repeated. He reminded Mr. O'Brien that the court regarded the Manchester shooting as murder, and the men who were hanged for the crime as murderers.

The Attorney-General then declared that he had finished the cross-examination. Mr. Gladstone was present at the commission to-day.

The case of the New York murderer sentenced to death by electricity is to be carried to the supreme court on the ground that the punishment is "cruel and unusual," and as such contrary to the United States. That the punishment is unusual there is no doubt, but that death by electricity is cruel has not been proven. The mystery surrounding the impending doom, however, is horror-inspiring in itself, and has been justly described as "worse than forty deaths by hanging."

TUPPER TALKS.

Minister of Marine Tupper on the Behring Sea Question.

Special to THE TIMES.]

Ottawa, May 29—Minister of Marine Tupper, who has yet no official news regarding the Behring Sea difficulty, pooh pooths the idea of any conflict between the United States and Canada is either contemplated or likely to happen, but at the same time he considers the contention of the United States that Behring Sea is a mare clausum as absurd and could not be maintained. In regard to the last seizures, Tupper says that they ought to be settled before now. If the United States do not acknowledge themselves to be in the wrong the matter will be referred to arbitration, but if the United States refuses to observe the law of nations, then there is nothing but war, or a back down for Canada.

The Grand Orange Lodge, now sitting at Goderich, suggests the idea of submitting the Jesuit question to the Imperial Parliament, but the question has not yet been finally disposed of.

BEHRING SEA.

British Men of War for Behring Sea—U. S. Excitement.

Ottawa, May 28—A Dominion Cabinet Minister stated that he does not anticipate any collision in Behring Sea, even though British men-of-war proceeded to those waters. The presence there of war ships was not an indication that they would molest the American revenue cutters. The negotiations for a settlement of the claims for the Canadian vessels seized in Behring Sea are progressing favorably. England continues to refuse to recognize the exclusive sovereignty of the United States there. A hope is expressed for a satisfactory settlement of the Alaska boundary question. Canada through England has proposed the appointment of a commission of Canadian and American surveyors to go over the disputed ground with the view of screening upon certain data to be used in delimitating the boundary. The United States Government has not replied yet to this proposition.

San Francisco, May 28.—A dispatch from Victoria to-day, stating that the entire British fleet in British Columbia waters will shortly proceed to Behring Sea, created considerable excitement and no little discussion among the naval officers stationed here. The Chronicle thinks that President Harrison's proclamation declaring the eastern half of Behring Sea a closed sea does not warrant Great Britain in sending men of war into that sea to defend the British sealers by force of arms. "All the seals that ever were or ever will be taken in Behring Sea," it says, "are not worth the risk of a serious rupture with England, and yet if so grave a matter is committed to the care of subordinates, who can do nothing but obey orders, we may find ourselves involved in actual war before we know it."

SPEEDY TRIALS.

(Before His Lordship Sir M. B. Begbie, C. J.)

Henry Carter, charged with stealing jewelry from the Oriental Hotel. Prisoner pleaded guilty.

His Lordship made a few remarks on the crime committed for the sum of $4, the amount for which the jewelry was pawned. "I wish I could convince you and other young men to walk in the right path. You don't appear to be a hardy criminal and you seem sorry for your crime. I hope three months in jail will make you a better man." The prisoner was committed to jail for three months.

Harry Franklin, charged with stealing a silk handkerchief at Cowichan, elected to be tried by a jury.

James Healy, alias O'Connor, on a charge of breaking away from the chaingang, decided to take a speedy trial and pleaded guilty.

"What have you to say?" remarked His Honor.

Healy said he was only trying to regain his liberty; he saw a chance and took advantage of it.

His Lordship said the excuse would not condone the offence; six months longer in the provincial gaol would, perhaps, make the prisoner consider that the liberty taken was dearly bought.

The prisoner commenced to cry when the sentence was imposed.

His Lordship remarked that the prisoner was making a laughing stock of himself.

The three men were then handcuffed and removed to the Provincial Gaol.

Arrived.

THE ESQUIMALT GARRISON.

The arrangement between the Imperial and Dominion Governments by which Great Britain garrisons Esquimalt, Canada footing the bills, while of undoubted benefit to Victoria locally, furnishes a precedent contrary to constitutional precept and practice, inasmuch as the arrangement has been acted upon before being submitted to Parliament. Says the Montreal Herald:—

"Some people will regard this as the preliminary move toward Imperial Federation, since the avowed object of those men in England who favor Imperial Federation is the obtaining of financial aid from the Colonies, while there are other people who will object to Sir John's defiance of the constitutional principle that public money shall not be used for purposes which have not received the assent of Parliament. Everybody acquainted with English history is familiar with the fact that the English people have always been hostile to a military supported government. England only permits the English army to exist from year to year. Two bills must be passed to insure the continuance of the army, and yet notwithstanding it is proposed to violate this principle by garrisoning Esquimalt at the expense of Canada, and without asking the consent of Parliament. It was not for mere form's sake that the people of England insisted on the protective clause in the Bill of Rights in 1690, which they have persistently clung to ever since, and if it is worth England's while in the present reign to insist upon the punctilious observance of Parliament's rights, it is also worth Canada's while to do so. Supposing that these British troops had been in Manitoba, would Sir John have so easily permitted Manitoba to exercise her railway rights? Of course not. He yielded only to a threat, and because he knew that the Canadian militia would not be well pleased at being asked to coerce Canadians against the enjoyment of their undoubted rights. Sir John had to give way because he had no troops, foreign and indifferent to Canadian sentiment and Canadian rights. It is the knowledge of this fact that induced the Empire's correspondent to suggest that British troops from India should be brought to Canada to prevent any action towards unrestricted reciprocity with the United States."

Though the above language be that of an alarmist there is much in it to commend it to every thoughtful man. We discover not alone the unconstitutionality of the proceeding, but we are made painfully cognizant of the pressure of bossism at Ottawa. The unconstitutionality of Sir John's action is so palpable that even a British Columbia M. P. should be able to see it, and yet we doubt if one of them is acquainted with the circumstances. But our object is not wholly to shew the pliability or ignorance of our legislators. We wish to point out to lovers of liberty and constitutional rights that a "wretched newspaper" has been the first to arraign Sir John for violating one of the most important principles connected with English political jurisprudence. A hundred men, more or less, representing the interests of over 5,000,000 of people, are indifferent or ignorant of the fact that instead of governing they are being governed, and this condition of things left to be pointed out by a newspaper. There are judges who are just and there are politicians who are honest, but the fact is nevertheless painfully apparent that it would be a dreadfully cold day for Canada if independent journalism should suddenly become extinct.

AMERICAN PREPARATIONS.

It is amusing to read of the preparations the Americans are making to enforce their claims in Behring Sea. The Richard Rush is scarcely a more formidable war ship than our own revenue cutter, the Sir James Douglas. The Bear is a wooden steamer which the lightest war ship in Esquimalt harbor can knock out in four rounds, while as for the Iroquois she is obsolete and consequently useless in battle. Possibly the Charleston will be ready by the time things have grown warm in Behring's Sea, but it is doubtful; there is something wrong with the Charleston, and she will not be ready for service for some time. Before the Charleston can be made ready for battle the Swallowtail may need a little money for current expenses, and all she will have to do will be to steam over to Seattle and levy an assessment on that city. Seattle mulcted of a few hundred thousand, Tacoma can be looted, and even Olympia made to chip in toward the expenses. But why should we dwell on a prospect so bright with pecuniary possibilities. Let us hope that hostilities will be deferred until after the fourth of July, for we believe that it is the intention of the Amity baseball team to sojourn in Seattle on that day.

JOURNALISM.

Mr. Charles R. Miller, editor of the New York Times, has delivered an address before the students of Dartmouth College upon the "Art of Journalism," in which he calls attention to the fact that the art of making a newspaper is not less arduous than that which is required to master other forms of professional activity. Success, in Mr. Miller's view, does not lie in making a journal merely the organ of a personality. He holds that the day of great editors has yielded to that of great newspapers, which is undoubtedly true if we qualify the remark, that it is the great editor that makes the great newspaper. Mr. Miller points out with great force the difference between the newspaper success which is due to pandering to vicious and morbid tastes and the legitimate prosperity arising from accord with intelligent and progressive opinion, and he reminds the reader that the former is to be corrected not by lashing the paper but by diminishing ignorance and vice in the community. Notwithstanding the alleged venality of the press, it is Mr. Miller's opinion that the number of great journals which publish their own opinions in politics, not opinions dictated by a political committee, which judge public questions upon their merits and not by their relation to parties, which, in a word, seek the public welfare rather than a party advantage, is much larger than ever before.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Wm. E. Gladstone considers the Prince of Wales a shrewd, clever man, who keeps himself well informed regarding the topics of the day. He seldom opens a book, but gleans a good deal from conversation. Mr. Gladstone thinks the Prince a success as a public man.

A bombshell has been thrown into the scientific world through the discovery of Mr. Brereton Baker, of Dulwich College, about oxygen. That gas, which is known as the great agent of combustion, loses it character when dried. It becomes inert. Even charcoal will not burn in it when heated to redness, nor phosphorus become luminous. As yet there is no explanation.

A short time ago we had occasion to notice the gratifying progress made in Ontario in the study of medicine by women. In England several leading corporations now admit women to their examinations and degrees; a good female school of medicine is now established in London; seventy-two women are already on the English medical register, and ninety-six students are in attendance at the school.

Mr. Hanbury is a member of the English House of Commons, of whom we do not often hear, but he made a remark the other day that should bring him into notice as a maker of epigrams. Discussing the pension list he said it was a monstrous disgrace that the descendants of Nelson and Nell Gwynne should receive equal favor. The hereditary pension business is outrageous in any case, and Mr. Hanbury has succeeded in putting it in a very strong light.

The Montreal Herald, speaking of imprisonment for debt in Quebec, says:—"Here we have our Bastile for debtors, into which an unfortunate may be thrust on some trumped-up affidavit, and there left to rot while his children starve." How different the lot of the Ontario debtor! He goes to gaol sometimes, too, but he has the consolation of knowing that he is not imprisoned for debt, but for contempt of the Court which orders him to pay the debt.

The cable brings us the startling news that Herr Richter said "fie" to Prince Bismarck, and that Bismarck replied warmly, "Whoever says 'fie' to me is impudent," and soon afterwards left abruptly—very likely slammed the door. In forming a judgment upon this important incident we must bear in mind that the word "fie" is merely a translation. Perhaps the word used by Herr Richter should have been translated "rats."

The Texas and Pacific Company sank a bored well some years ago near Eagle Flat Station, about 110 miles east of El Paso, in a fruitless endeavor to obtain artesian water. The well was abandoned when it had been bored 800 feet. This abandoned well has proved to be a remarkable natural phenomenon. For twelve hours each day a furious gust of air rushes into the tubing, and the next twelve hours an equally strong gust rushes out. This occurs with the utmost regularity, and, so far, no break has been noticed in the regular occurrence.

It has been computed that between 36,000,000 and 37,000,000 of babies are born into the world each year. The rate of production is, therefore, about 70 a minute, or rather more than one for every beat of the clock. With the one-a-minute calculation every reader is familiar, but it is not everyone who stops to calculate what this means when it comes to a year's supply. And it will probably, therefore, startle a good many persons to find on the authority of a writer that could the infants of a year be ranged in a line in cradles seven deep they would go round the globe.

The often repeated suggestion of turning the hose upon a mob was tried at Manistee, Michigan, the other day. There was a sort of religious war among some Poles, and they fought without distinction of age or sex. The cold water treatment was exceedingly effective. The secret of its success is that it makes a riot farcical. No one would think of seeking the laddie reputation at the hose's nozzle. A man who is wounded by a bullet may command the sympathy of a crowd. But who could do anything but laugh at a popular leader with a silk hat reduced to pulp by a fire engine?

Postmaster General Haggart has without doubt ruined his prospects of success as a minister by his retrogressive postal regulations. Few things have met with greater opposition than his increase of postage on drop letters. So far has this gone that private individuals threaten to organize a private delivery in large cities, as they claim that it will pay them at one cent each instead of two as charged by the government. The government, however, have a monopoly of the letter carrying business by an act of parliament, and threaten to prosecute the promoters if they attempt to carry out the scheme. The new regulations are so many steps backward and are directly opposed to the policy of other countries.

If there is any one thing which should recommend itself to every good Canadian, irrespective of religious bias, it is the necessity of agreeing on some system of public school education. The squabble which is now going on in Ontario is a disgrace to all the parties interested. If the propagation of Christ's word was the real object in view, the difficulty could be settled. The principle of bear and forbear would come into play. The strife, however, is one for power, sordid from beginning to end. It is our opinion that nineteen-twentieths of parents are of the opinion that all religious teaching, save the reading of the Bible, should be kept out of the public schools. The young idea has no need to be laden with the tenets of any religious belief. These he can acquire at home or at church. The public school should be neutral territory in the matter of religion, and the sooner the clergy make up their minds to this effect, the better it will be for the State.

—To assist Nature most effectively in her efforts to throw off or resist serious disease, it is essential that an impulse should be given to functions which growing ill health suspends or weakens, namely, the action of the bowels, bilious secretion, and digestion. Wealthy Baron Expires Suddenly

For some years there has resided at Revenue, on Sandy river, Oregon, a man who has gone by the name of Von Schelley. He was known to be a very wealthy baron, who was sent out on account of his terribly dissipated habits, and has constantly received from Germany a large sum of money which he wasted in gambling and excessive drinking. Last Monday his strange career came to an end. He was talking when he fell to the ground and expired without a word. He has a wife at Revenue, but it was not learned whether he had any children or not.

AYER'S Sugar-Coated Cathartic PILLS.
If the Liver becomes torpid, if the bowels are constipated, or if the stomach fails to perform its functions properly, use Ayer's Pills. They are invaluable.

For some years I was a victim to Liver Complaint, in consequence of which I suffered from General Debility and Indigestion. A few boxes of Ayer's Pills restored me to perfect health.—W. T. Brightney, Henderson, W. Va.

For years I have relied more upon Ayer's Pills than anything else, to my bowels. These Pills are mild in action, and do their work thoroughly. I have used them, with good effect, in cases of Rheumatism and Dyspepsia.—G. F. Miller, Attleborough, Mass.

Regulate

Ayer's Pills cured me of Stomach and Liver troubles, from which I had suffered for years. I consider them the best pills made, and would not be without them.—Morris Gates, Downsville, N. Y.

I was attacked with Bilious Fever, which was followed by Jaundice, and was so dangerously ill that my friends despaired of my recovery. I commenced taking Ayer's Pills, and soon regained my customary strength and vigor.—John C. Pattison, Lowell, Nebraska.

Last spring I suffered greatly from a troublesome humor on my side. In spite of every effort to cure this eruption, it increased until the flesh became entirely raw. I was troubled, at the same time, with Indigestion, and distressing pains in

The Bowels.

By the advice of a friend I began taking Ayer's Pills. In a short time I was free from pain, my food digested properly, the sores on my body commenced healing, and, in less than one month, I was cured.—Samuel D. White, Atlanta, Ga.

I have long used Ayer's Pills, in my family, and believe them to be the best pills made.—S. C. Darden, Darden, Miss.

My wife and little girl were taken with Dysentery a few days ago, and I at once began giving them small doses of Ayer's Pills, thinking I would call a doctor if the disease became any worse. In a short time the bloody discharges stopped, all pain went away, and health was restored.—Theodore Esling, Richmond, Va.

THE LOVE THAT ENDURES.

All love that has not friendship for its base
Is like a mansion built upon the sand.
Though brave its walls as any in the land,
And all the turrets lift their heads in grace;
Though skillful and accomplished artists trace
Most beautiful designs on every hand,
And gleaming statues in dim niches stand,
And fountains sparkle down from where upspring
Yet when from frowning past a searing gale
Of adverse fate is blown, or sad rains fall
Day in, day out, against its yielding wall,
Lo! the fair structure crumbles to the dust.
Love to endure life's sorrow and earth's woe
Needs friendship's solid masonry work below.
—Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

THE SANS SPIRITU MINE.

"I have just been reading a strange story of the 'Lost Cabin Mine' in an old Evening Sun which I found in a pigeon hole of my desk," said a prominent Wall street banker yesterday afternoon. "Sit down a few moments and I will tell you another strange story of a lost mine," he continued, "and one that was rather costly to me. That truth is stranger than fiction is a wise old saying. There is very little romance which enters into the life of a professional Wall street man. As a rule, he is ever ready to grasp after the almighty dollar, and I confess that I am no exception to this rule, and many times during my life have I invested money in wildcat enterprises looking more for a possibility than a probability. These enterprises to which I allude I entered into in my younger days. I thought that I had settled down into a conservative business man; but I found, about nine months ago, that my disposition to become the richest man in the world had got the better of my good judgment, and the strange, weird story which I am about to relate will explain itself.

"For a number of years I have had a speaking acquaintance with a Brooklyn school teacher. I lost sight of him for about two years, when I was surprised to see him walk into my office a year ago. He asked me if I knew where he could rent an office, and told me that on account of ill health he was compelled to give up school teaching. I have five rooms here, and as I need but four, I told him that he could have the back room at a nominal rent. He seemed delighted with the proposition, and moved in the next day. He put out a shingle, 'Money to Loan,' but I noticed that he had no customers.

"Two or three weeks after his occupancy of the office I noticed that he became less erratic in his business hours. He began to arrive at 9 o'clock in the morning and would remain until 4 in the afternoon locked in the office. Shortly after he developed this regularity in his business hours I met a man in the hall whose unusual appearance attracted my attention. He was tall, attenuated to a marked degree, of sallow complexion, smooth face, long, curly, forest like eyes and hair of shining blackness which hung down upon his shoulders. He was attired in a suit of rusty black. The coat was an old fashioned frock cut and buttoned tightly to his throat. He wore a broad brimmed slouch hat. In his hand he carried the father of all umbrellas, a great big gingham affair that would keep the rain off four people, and looked as though it might have belonged to one of our revolutionary grandfathers.

"I became interested and stopped to see what his destination was. He moved along with a quick though shambling step and tapped lightly upon my school teacher neighbor's door. It was opened and he disappeared within. I heard the bolt click as the door was locked from the inside, and I turned into my office with a peculiar feeling that I would like to know who this strange person was.

"I saw him come every day, usually about the same time in the day," continued the banker, "and he would remain closeted with the school teacher for several hours. At last he disappeared and my curiosity got the better of me. I made up my mind to ask the school teacher who his friend was, particularly as I noticed that he had changed his shingle to read, 'Mining Engineer.'

"I learned from the school teacher that his friend was a spiritualistic medium, and then he startled me with the assertion that he had located the 'Sans Spiritu Mine.' You must know that this mine is the richest mine in the world; was worked before Cortez entered Mexico, but for over a hundred years it has been lost. The school teacher's assertion rather staggered me, but I laughed incredulously.

"'You needn't laugh,' said he, 'I have found it and I have a man locating it within a stone's throw. Two years ago I went to Mexico on a vacation. I am somewhat of a physician and happened to save the life of an old negro woman who was formerly a housekeeper for a padre. This padre was the only person alive who knew the location of the mine, and when he died he divulged the secret to the negress, who, in turn, divulged it to me.'

"This, of course, was interesting after the fashion of dime novels, and I did not take much stock in his story until I saw that he was really in earnest. He unlocked his desk and took two rolls of tracing paper out. One of them he showed me and said: 'This is my original map. The mine lies 400 miles from the Gulf of Mexico, and Vera Cruz is the seaport to it. The other roll contains a map drawn by the clairvoyant whom you inquired about. He has never seen my map, yet he has drawn almost a facsimile of it, with the exception of a few minor details. I am not a spiritualist, but I met this man and he dragged off his wonderful powers, and I gave him $5 if he successfully accomplished his object. He does not know what he has drawn, and I am the only person in the world who can put his hand on the long lost Sans Spiritu Mine.'

"I confess that the fellow made an impression on me," continued the banker, after lighting a cigar and gazing thoughtfully at the smoke rings for a moment. "I then asked him for further details, but he would give me none, further than that the old negress was dead. I asked him what it would cost to work the mine, and how he was fixed. He replied:

"'I have never seen the mine, but from some manuscripts I have of the padre's I judge that there are untold millions in sight. Of course it will take some money to fit out an expedition, but I think the output of a month's work will pay for all the mills necessary. My idea is to secretly charter a schooner, provision it for say one to three months, put aboard the necessary tools to work the mine on the quiet until I get enough out to acquire the mine lawfully, but I am without funds, unfortunately.'

"Well, I bit like a shark. Heavens, how the blood rushed through my heart! I knew the school teacher to be a reputable man. He showed me the padre's manuscripts, written in Spanish, of which the school teacher was a master. He read it to me, and it sounded like an Aladdin's Wonderful Lamp story. The upshot of the matter was that I agreed then and there to interest myself in forming a stock company. The next day I brought four of my Wall street friends into the school teacher's office and he laid his subject before them. They bit as quickly as I did and I subscribed $20,000 and the others $10,000 each. We chartered a schooner, provisioned her for three months, put ten miners aboard of her, gave the school teacher $25,000, and he set sail for Vera Cruz. We waited one, two, three months and no news from the schooner. Then I telegraphed to Vera Cruz, asking if the schooner was there. The reply was that it had been there nearly two months and empty. This was news, any way; but when another month rolled by and nothing further was heard we became suspicious and sent a detective down there. He telegraphed in cipher that the crew had been discharged, the miners paid a month's wages, and were there waiting further orders from the school teacher, who was Pooh Bah of the schooner and mine.

"A week later came another telegram, in which the detective reported that he had ascertained the fact that the school teacher had sold the provisions at a good profit and had left Vera Cruz with a very handsome woman, with whom he seemed to be infatuated. We sent a man swearing and then telegraphed the detective to find him, and by hook or crook bring him back. A month later in walked our detective and the school teacher. He had followed him to El Paso del Norte, got him across the river on a friendly quest and then nabbed him. The school teacher seemed to be all broken up and told me to get the stockholders together, which I did inside of ten minutes, for my messenger found them all on the floor of the Stock Exchange. I felt sorry for the poor school teacher when he stood there with bowed head, taking without a murmur the whirlwind of execrations which were hurled at him.

"'Now explain yourself,' shouted an angry stockholder.

"The five of us were seated around the table and the school teacher leaning against the mantel.

"'Gentlemen,' said he, 'I confess that I have wronged you, but I was tempted by a woman with the face of an angel and the heart of a devil—a heart as black as the hinges of hell. Rather than bury myself in the trackless waste without her I throw up everything for her. She got my money and deserted me, but I will make amends. The mine is there. I will go again. See, I have the map yet. I have never parted with it, not for an instant.'

"'Oh, that's a likely story. You're nothing but a bunco and Sing Sing catcher you,' was the irate interjection of a gentleman on my right.

"'Oh! don't say that,' pleaded the school teacher; 'don't say that. Just one more chance,' and he tottered over to the table, laying the map where all could see it. 'See! Here is the road to millions, hundreds and thousands of millions. Just one more chance, gentlemen.'

"Not a word was spoken, and you could have heard a pin drop as we turned our eyes on the man. My God! will I ever forget it! His face was as white as a sheet, and his fingers clutched nervously at his map; he threw one hand convulsively to his heart and then fell forward upon the table.

"He was dead—dead, sir, of apoplexy. We quietly took the body to his home in Brooklyn, and the Friday following he was buried—I think in Greenwood. We have his map and the padre's letters, but we find that we might as well hunt for a needle in a haystack as to hunt for the 'Sans Spiritu mine,' as there is no indication in which direction from Vera Cruz the mine lies. The landmarks are on the map, but it's a lifetime work to hunt a trackless waste for landmarks, so we concluded to pocket our loss and keep the matter a secret."

Whales of the Scottish Isles.

Few people would guess the etymology of "ca'ing" when applied to a whale, printed as it was exactly like this in the columns of a weekly contemporary. It is really "ca'ing," the Scotch for calling, that name being given to this species of whale from the curious bleating sound they make. A stranded calf whale has a very pitiful call for its dam, which the latter answers in a harsher tone. The name is really local to the Scottish islands, the proper name being the dedoctor, the whales being so called because they roam about the sea under the guidance of a leader in the shape of an old bull. In the early spring, just before the breeding season, there is a very keen competition for this office, and more than once the contending bulls have both been known to die from the effects of the encounter.

The whale is not a very large one, being only from sixteen to eighteen feet long; it has occasionally been taken in immense quantities among the shoals and channels of the Hebrides, Orkneys, Shetlands and Fair Isles. When a herd makes its appearance the natives lose no time in collecting all the boats, guns and harpoons which they can lay their hands on. They then try all they can to get seaward of the shoal, and if they succeed endeavor, by advancing with blowing horns, splashing oars, firing guns and shouting, to drive the terrified cetaceans on shore. Once they are stranded a terrific attack is made, and hundreds have been slain in a single battue. The scene is one of the most picturesque it is possible to witness in the north of Scotland. It is quite another affair from the occasional grounding of a Greenland whale, the ca'ing whale being of an entirely different and far more gregarious species. —London Globe.

Tiny Tim's Appetite.

In the "Christmas Carol" Mr. Webster provided a real goose and a real plum pudding, which were served smoking hot for Mrs. Cratchit and the seven little Cratchits, yet none, including Tiny Tim, the children always had enormous portions given them, and all ate heartily every night; but what really troubled me was the conduct of the little girl who played Tiny Tim. The child's appetite appalled me. I could not help noticing the extraordinary rapidity with which she consumed what I gave her, and she looked so wan and thin, and so pitiful, that her face used positively to haunt me. We watched as well as we could, and the moment Tiny Tim was seated and began to eat we observed a curious shuffling movement at the stage fireplace, and everything that I had given her—goose and potatoes and apple sauce—disappeared behind the sham stove, the child pretending to eat as hearty as ever from the empty plate. When the performance was over Mrs. Mellon and myself asked the little girl what became of the food she did not eat, and, after a little hesitation, frightened lest she should get into trouble, which we assured her could not happen, she confessed that her little sister (I should mention that they were the children of one of the scene shifters) waited on the other side of the stage fireplace for the supplies, and that the whole family enjoyed a hearty supper every night out of the plentiful portions to which I, as Bob, had assisted Tiny Tim.—Toole's Reminiscences.

Gold Under Philadelphia.

The ground on which Philadelphia is built is one of the richest gold fields in the world, says The Times of that city. This is a fact. The only difficulty is that the field cannot be worked. Nearly the whole city is underlaid with clay to the depth of about ten feet—an area say ten miles square. A cubic foot of clay, weighing 120 pounds, taken from a depth of fourteen feet when the cellar of the Twelfth street market house was excavated, was practically demonstrated to contain seven-tenths of a grain of gold, or one pound in 1,221,000. The experiment was repeated with about the same results with clay taken from a brickyard in the suburbs. Supposing the whole mass of clay to be 4,180,000,000 pounds (and it is really much greater) the amount of gold would reach in value the enormous sum of $123,000,000. The gravel is much richer in gold than the clay, but there is not so much of it. Undoubtedly $300,000,000 worth of gold lies within fifteen feet of the surface, and still it cannot be used.

A Clean Record.

Judge Gary declares that it is a citizen's moral duty to keep ice and snow off the sidewalk in front of his premises. Every Chicago citizen can point with pride to his record for the last six months.—Chicago News.

Snuff Dipping in Maine.

Snuff dipping is on the increase at Lewiston. In fact the practice is growing quite the fashion. The devotees don't inhale it as did our grandfathers; they make what is called "a smear" with castile soap, and what not, and apply it delicately, voluptuously to the nostrils. A species of mild intoxication is said to result. Twenty-five pounds of snuff is one tobacconist's order for a week. It comes in ox bladders as big as your head and as solid as a Dutch cheese.—Lewiston Journal.

An Unprofitable Medicine.

"You will find this medicine just the thing for sickly children," said the druggist. "It's the finest tonic made, and will increase their appetite 50 per cent."

"If that's the case," replied the man, "I don't want any of it. I have seven children in the house and they can already eat more than I can give them."—New York Sun.

VARIOUS TOPICS.

Newsy Paragraphs About Men and Things in General.

A systematic appeal to printers and the editorial fraternity of the United States is to be made to secure sufficient funds in addition to the amount already subscribed, to erect a monument to Horace Greeley in New York, the public contributions making the monument have more of the character of a national than a local tribute. Should a larger sum than that proposed ($25,000) be raised it will go to embellish the details of the design.

The Inman line of steamers, which includes the City of New York and the City of Paris, is said to be owned by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company and the Standard Oil people, so that it is not a British line, save in the fact that the ships are built in English yards and fly the British flag.

The introduction of high license in Boston has closed out 1700 liquor saloons. Furnishings to the value of $2,000,000 are on the market, and over 2000 idle bartenders are ready for professional engagements in other cities.

Captain Watkins of the City of Paris says he believes a transatlantic steamer can be built that will make twenty five knots an hour. He says that but for three hours delay in the fog, the City of Paris would have made a better record than she achieved. In August the course is somewhat shorter than at present, and he expects the City of Paris will break her own record.

Mrs. Cleveland has gained nine pounds in flesh since she quit shaking hands as a business. Mrs. Harrison has lost three pounds. It is pleasant to know that the gain is greater than the loss.

Denmark expends $55,000 year'y for the maintenance of dairy schools. The result is an immense improvement in the quality of the dairy product, and an increase within twenty years in Denmark's butter export from $2,100,000 to $13,000,000 annually.

It is announced that four kings will visit the Paris Exposition. They are the Kings of Belgium, Saxony, Greece and Servia. Although none of them are very big kings, France ought to feel a straight flush of pleasure, as it were, at the distinction.

The greatest of the new English ironclads, the Nile, has to be taken out of dry dock because of her structural inability to support her armor. The Nile rates as of 12,000 tons, and the weight of her protecting armor, exclusive of glacis plates and steel decks, is 4230 tons.

The quickest way to reduce corpulence is to go up Eiffel Tower, in Paris. In addition to the loss of ounces from the exercise, there is a loss of two pounds at the top on account of the difference in atmospheric pressure. The two pounds, however, are in waiting at the bottom.

An English industrial paper is authority for the statement that in that portion of England called the "Black" country, owing to the thousands of smoking factory chimneys, semi-skilled workmen on chains and nails, working sixty and sixty-five hours a week, are not able to earn more than 10 to 15 shillings per week, while women earn but 4 to 6 shillings.

The Liebig Extract of Beef Company has £3,000,000 invested at Fray Bentos, a little town in Uruguay, where it kills half a million head of cattle every year. The annual sale of the Liebig Company's extract now exceeds 8,000,000 jars.

Great Britain's fisheries employ 250,000 men.

English army officers praise the new German drill book.

There are two most remarkable coincidences unnoticed by historians in the career of America's foremost captain and that of the most renowned warrior of the Old World. "It was by accident," as Froude says, "that Julius Cæsar took up the profession of a soldier" at the age of forty-three, when, with the exception of brief campaigns in Asia and Spain, "he had no military experience at all." Washington assumed the command of the American armies also at the age of forty-three, and with scarcely any experience in war, except what he had acquired in a skirmish with the French in 1754 and in the brief march of Braddock the next year. It was late in life for the quiet Virginia planter to learn the art of war, when in 1775 the call to arms came, and the task was suddenly thrust upon him of creating a military system and organization for a people unused to restraint.

In Great Britain, last year, 5,000,000 copies of the Bible were issued. The St. James edition is the most generally used, the "American" and the "revised" editions having a comparatively small sale.

A fellow asked a gentleman coming out of a Pittsburg theatre for an admission check, saying he had lost his own. He got it and then asked for the seat coupon. The gentleman gave it, saying kindly, "Here's a cigarette to smoke between the acts," and the poor fellow stepped lightly in. The manager hearing of him sent him a bouquet as an additional contribution to his comfort. The recipient looked at it, picked out a white rose for his button-hole and considerately bade the usher to return the other flowers with his thanks. This is the way to make the world better. Patrons of our theatres have it in their power to do a vast amount of good.

Rev. Dr. Storrs does not agree with Bishops Potter and Huntington that the times are out of joint and that the tendency of our politics for a hundred years has been downward. Political parties and political contests of to-day, while by no means ideal, are, as the Doctor thoroughly believes, "vastly cleaner and more reputable than those described by authentic records from the earlier part of the century."

THE BRITISH COLUMBIA FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY.

TAKES RISKS ON THE CASH OR MUTUAL PLANS.

As this is a Home Company, organized by British Columbians for the two-fold purpose of giving cheap insurance and keeping the money in the Province, it commends itself to the support of every insurer desiring the prosperity of this country.

In Ontario, the system of insurance, which is similar to that adopted by this Company, has been in highly successful operation for the past fifty years and it has proved to be a great advantage to every insurer in it, by reducing the cost of insurance, and it is estimated that now three-fourths of the insurance effected in Ontario is carried by mutual companies.

Chicago is the people of the United States. That is the very game the estate and unscrupulous Jim Blaine's playing, and he would turn, as now he his not, backed by a united people, with Canada for the unwilling stake.

Let us still play a waiting game, confident that with right on our side we shall hold reckless and scheming politicians in check not only by British ironclads but by even more desirable means, the public opinion of their own fellow-citizens. C. F. N.

THE ALASKA BOUNDARY.

Mayor Grant Before the Senatorial Committee on Tuesday Evening.

Senator Hoar, chairman, convened the Senatorial Committee at the Driard House last evening, to give Mayor Grant, M. P. P., an opportunity to impress upon the Committee the importance of, at as early a day as possible, defining the boundary between Canada and the United States possessions in Alaska, as well as the most desirable manner of demarcation, not only for economical reasons but as a practical and sensible dividing line.

Mayor Grant's suggestions were that Great Britain and the United States should appoint a joint commission, whose instructions would be to as near as possible be governed by the spirit of the treaty made between Great Britain and Russia in 1825 for the purpose of establishing a number of datum points on the various roads of ingress to Canada, and at such other points as the general nature of the coast line would warrant, with a due regard to what would be fair and equitable to both nations if straight lines were extended between the said fixed points. He endeavored to show that if in places the boundary should conform to the windings of the coast, as set forth in the treaty, it would cost a very large sum to so define it, besides being ridiculously impracticable, and further that at present it would be unnecessary to survey in detail between the points mentioned until important interests shall have cropped up, and even then the detail of survey need not be made otherwise than between two given points as fixed by the Commission and ratified by the parties thereto. Mayor Grant's opinion was stated very explicitly, and as he is thoroughly informed on the subject, his statements were accepted by the committee as material evidence on the boundary question, one of the most difficult subjects that has been delegated to them.

Cutlery.

M. & H. A. Fox have just received direct from Sheffield a large stock of table and pocket cutlery, scissors, etc. Shaving outfits a specialty. Call and examine at 78 Government street.

Social.

A rose social will be held in the Gorge Road Methodist Church, on Wednesday evening next, when an address will be presented to the pastor, Rev. Mr. Wadman. There will be ice cream, etc.

For San Francisco.

The Queen of the Pacific will sail this evening with the following passengers: Miss V. Leighton, T. N. Gilbert, R. J. Nixon, Jas. Burnie, E. C. Douglas, E. Stanger, F. G. Neilson, G. R. Webber, J. A. Bradley, Percy Bredley.

Auction Sale.

The sale of Capt. Beveley's fine property on Saanich Road, takes place at Capt Clarke's auction room at 12 o'clock on Friday. The property has a frontage of 200 feet on Saanich road and is within 20 minutes walk of the postoffice.

Syrup of Figs.

Produced from the laxative and nutritious juice of California figs, combined with the medicinal virtues of plants known to be most beneficial to the human system, acts gently, on the kidneys, liver and bowels, effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds and headaches, and curing habitual constipation.

Steamer Changes.

As a consequence of the loss of the Alaskan it is very probable that the T. J. Potter will be taken back from the Sound to run on the river division at Portland the coming season. Should the transfer be made either the Mountain Queen or S. G. Reed will be sent to take her place, these being the most suitable boats for the business.

Officers Elected.

At the annual meeting of the Young Men's Institute, No. 85, held last evening, the following officers were nominated and elected: President, George Madigan; first vice-president, F. H. Lang; second vice-president, Geo. Tribe; treasurer, W. H. Harris; secretary, T. Roarke; financial and corresponding secretary, Frank J. McDonald; marshal, T. McManus; executive committee, P. Farrell, C. DeChenard, C. Magiri, J. Leonard and T. Deasy.

Street Lines.

Ald. McKillican's resolution, re street lines and fences and buildings thereon, is as follows in full: That all property owners whose fences or buildings project beyond the street lines and encroach upon the public highways and streets of the city of Victoria, be given 18 months' notice required by by-law for the removal of the said fences and buildings, and that the city surveyor be requested to provide the city clerk with whatever information he may require in notifying the said parties.

Go to G. G. Bigger's

For fresh island Strawberries, new supply every day. Strawberries and Cream dished up in the cream parlor. Peaches, Plums and Apricots, first of the season, direct from California. The finest Soda Water in the city. All fruit syrups of every flavor with Boston Cream and Egg Soda, at all times. Nuts, Candies of the best make, fresh all the time. Tobaccos, Cigars and Cigarettes, the best 5c. Cigar in Victoria. Don't forget the place, 86 Government Street, 3 doors south of Post Office, Art Reception Rooms, and Fruit Depot.

The U. P. on the Sound.

Among the arrivals in the city last evening were C. J. Smith, the new manager of the O. R. & N. Company, W. H. Holcomb, Vice President of the Union Pacific, and T. L. Kimball, General Manager of the Union Pacific, accompanied by their families. The company came over merely to make a flying visit and returned by this morning's steamer. It is said that the Union Pacific people who have frequently visited this part of the country of late are looking over the ground with a view of extending their branches northward. A line to the Sound, extending down to Port Townsend and Angeles with ferry connection with Vancouver Island and the R. & N. extended southward to meet it and northward to the end of the Island would give the Union the key to the whole passenger traffic (at least) of the coast from Portland to Alaska.

Libel Suit.

The libel suit of Captain Robertson vs. the Colonist will come up to-morrow before Sir Matthew Baillie Begbie. In view of the opinions held by the Chief Justice of the press and the profession generally, we think the interests of justice would be better served were Sir Matthew to decline to preside at any more trials for libel. This is not our opinion alone; it is the conviction of almost every citizen of Victoria. Sir Matthew has outlived his usefulness on the Bench, and the two late libel cases clearly demonstrate that there is a wide divergence between his opinion and the opinion of eight respectable jurymen as to what is right and just in such cases. If Sir Matthew Begbie will refuse to retire upon superannuation allowance altogether, he ought at least to confine himself to cases where it will be impossible for personal prejudices to have any effect in determining the issue. Certainly it will be most improper for the Chief Justice to hear any more cases against newspapers.

POLICE COURT.

(Before Hon. A. N. Richards, Q. C.)

Mrs. Margaret Moore, charged with drunkenness, is a young woman who was married some years ago to a baker who was in business some years on the corner of Fort and Blanchard streets. The woman pleaded guilty and paid a fine of $5.00.

FOUND ON THE BEACH.

The U. S. Lighthouse Steamer Arrives with a Castaway.

The U. S. lighthouse tender Manzanita anchored in the harbor last evening from Neah Bay, in search of a buoy which broke away and was supposed to have been picked up by a passing steamer. A TIMES reporter boarded the vessel this morning and was informed that a white boy, aged 12 years, was found on the beach at Neah Bay, where he has been living for some time with the Indians. The lad was sitting on a spar on the lower deck and was dressed in a suit of blue overalls. In answer to questions the following facts were ascertained regarding his life. The boy's name is Hustler Willis; his father and mother died some time ago on Fidalgo Island. He shipped on a sealer owned by Indians and was landed at Neah Bay. The Indians agreed to pay him two dollars a month for his services, but finding that he was too young they put him ashore. He was fed by Indians for some time and was allowed to sleep in their tents. The lad was in a filthy condition and appeared to be very ignorant. The Captain of the Manzanita will land the boy at Port Townsend. At 10:15 o'clock this morning the Manzanita sailed for Point Wilson, Townsend and Seattle.

NANAIMO NEWS.

(From the Nanaimo Free Press.)

One day last week in No. 5 shaft of the Wellington colliery, one shift turned out 617 tons of coal which is the largest amount so far turned out in that shaft by a single shift.

Charles De Brai, a Frenchman, employed in the V. C. Co.'s shaft, while engaged in mining last night, was hurt about the body and legs by a fall of coal.

The men Franklin who was brought up from Cowichan last week, on a charge of larceny, was taken to Victoria this morning by Chief Constable Stewart, where he will stand trial for the alleged offence.

The quoit match at Wellington on 24th May between Messrs. Geo. Mitchell and Neilly Bowster resulted in an easy victory for Mr. Mitchell.

The collision which occurred on the Wellington road is not nearly as serious as at first reported. One of the engines and a coal box collided and the latter was slightly damaged. Work on the line was delayed but a few minutes.

"NO FLIES ON US."

BY A STRANGER.

You may talk of Chillianwalla,
You may prate of Waterloo,
You may blow about Kassassin
And Tel-el-kebir too;
But if you want a battle
Undertaken with a will,
I refer you back to Saturday,
Way up on Beacon Hill.
How our hair began to bristle,
How our cheeks began to burn,
As the marines of navy men
Took cover in the fern.
All cool and so collected!
Though the sun incessant blazes,
They prepared like British sailors
To attack the R. C. G. A.'s.
Their officers tacticians
Of the most exalted kind,
Cheered the lagging Bluejacket
Who, thirsty, hung behind.
"Now, Forward! Rush upon them,
'Aim low,' he shouted, " — it."
"The thing is most exciting,"
Ejaculated H——t.
As with a war of musketry
Away the sailors go,
Regardless of the caterpillars,
Headlong on the foe.

But now our vision wanders
To the top of Beacon Hill,
And the coldest same amongst us
Feels a sympathising thrill,
And his eye begins to water,
There's a shiver in his frame,
As Edward G—— P——r
Draws his faithful snickersawse,
And shouts to Major P——s,
"Now give the fellows room,
"And stand up, Major P——s,
"No hiding in the broom;
"Hurrah for blood and glory,"
"I rejoice in smoke and fire,"
"If you'll only let me at them,"
Shouted E—— G—— P——r.

You could see the admiration
In the eyes of all his men,
'Tis hopeless to describe it
By the aid of any pen.
We will simply say the Yankees
From Seattle and the Sound,
Were simply flabbergasted,
As they hurried from the ground.
Convinced how ignominiously
Their countrymen would fall,
In twisting in Victoria
The British lion's tail.

No wonder they were startled,
These goor, benighted Yanks,
As they recognized the figures
Who, fighting in the ranks,
Much more resembled demons,
Storming parapets and screens,
They stood up "kind o' paralysed,"
Right before the marines.
You should see the lightning flashing
In his battle-blazing eye,
So cool and so undaunted,
Stood the noble P. E. I!

As the battle waxes hotter
The excitement grows intense;
I heard his Worship mutter
"Why, the thing is quite immense!"
And further came the whisper
From the polished Mr. G——t,
"Seattle couldn't match it,
"And I'm sure Vancouver can't."
"We'll see," here roared a figure,
(As I'm but a sorry rhymer
You'll excuse a rising novice)
"I refer to Oppenheimer,"
Who wandered quite observant,
Taking notes, the people say,
For his opposition circus
On the "first", Dominion Day.

O! It was a stirring picture,
'Twould excite the most morose,
To see our sturdy citizens
Got up in "soldiers" clothes;
With their rifles "halo" bullets,
And their faces "bryon" scars,
Undismayed and coolly shooting
Whole brigades of British tars.

But I see him not in battle,
Where he's gone I'd like to know,
For a gunner's pricked his finger,
"Hurry, "Kalapie," for Joe,
Cried the sweating Colonel P——r,
"Where he's gone I can't imagine,
"I'm sure I cannot tell,
"But possibly you'll find him
Somewhere near the Park hotel,
So, therefore, "kick thistawse,"
"The doctor, to the front,
"The gunner's badly wounded,
"Though the thorn was somewhat blunt."
And soon with ready tweezers
Flashing ready in his fist,
Comes sturdy Doctor M——,
Who extracts it with a twist.
Now, there beside the bold brigade,
All prone upon the lea,
And blazing off their cartridges,
We notice Battery "C",
All firmly planted in the broom,
Like rusty bands of besters,
While at their head, or rather tail,
Is wayward Major P——s.
A goodly plan no doubt it is,
For officers to be,
Entrenched in some secluded spot,
So therefore Major P,
I'll not pursue the subject more,
But let it lightly pass,
As here your poor poet scribbler was
Well buried in the grass.

And now among the populace
We wander to and fro,
Sarcastically he's smiling there,
We notice Edward C——g;
An able critic of the day,
Should he this politician,
Engaged as we're aware he is,
Defending his position,
No doubt his enemies also
Some day will surely tire,
And like the crafty Hessian,
Will halt and cease their fire.
But just at present E. C. B.,
"It truly goes report,
Is running short of powder,
As he aby holds the fort.

Ah, what is that we notice,
Through the rank and growing weed,
That tall and solemn personage
Upon his showy steed,
As he passes hither thither,
Smiling sweetly on the benches,
Which he thrice now alternately,
By jumping o'er the benches,
And the fences surrounding the Park
Feel their blood get thick and curdle,
As the glowing Doctor D——n
Turns a bench into a hurdle.

Now, see that burly person
On a pony quite unruly,
Are we right or are we wrong,
When we call him Speaker P——y,
With a seat as firm as Archer,
Let the pony kick or rail,
Said the coward, now quite delighted,
"He can ride, and he can bowl."

Many more familiar faces
Do we notice here and there,
In conveyances peculiar
Do they sit, and smoke and stare.
Some are riding bicycles
While some imbibe the breezes
From the benches on the summit,
And some are up the "trees".
While others rather sickened
Of the soldier and the tar,
Are drinking B and B's,
Or loitering at the bar.

A success the day was voted
By us all beyond a doubt,
Why, even Admiral H——e
Quite forgot his recent gout,
As smiling in his carriage
He slapped his ailing leg,
Said "hyas closha, 'or' bravo,"
"It's bally, civ it Bog"
But H——e failed to see it,
There's a damper on his joy,
For close beside his carriage
Is that awful "Wretched Boy"
Taking notes, with book and pencil,
As the gamins shout and caper,
Of the people all about him,
For his awful "Wretched Paper."

But here we turn our footsteps
From the top of Beacon Hill,
Some are feeling happy,
While some are feeling ill,
But ere we wander homeward,
Let us stop and listen awhile,
Till it echoes from the mountains,
God save our noble Queen.

The Fleet for Behring Sea.

Last week an editorial article appeared in THE TIMES which stated that there was the best authority for saying that unless some arrangement was arrived at within a few days the middle of June would see three British war ships in Behring sea with instructions to retake any British Columbia vessels seized by American cutters in the open sea and outside of the statutory limit. This information was confirmed yesterday to some extent by activity at the navy yard, where men were busily engaged in completing the equipment of torpedo boats, placing patent fuel on board the ships and making other preparations for an extended cruise. H. M. S. Champion is expected to arrive before the 15th of June, in which event the squadron going north will be a formidable one.

Another Growl.

The Port Townsend Argus of yesterday says: "From the many growls which the chap on the corner heard on Union wharf yesterday, many of the people who went over to Victoria to celebrate evidently feel that they have a grievance. It might be well for the Townsendites to learn now, as well as at some future time, that the natives on Vancouver Island know when they have a good thing. Remember that they are descendants of their fathers, who were Englishmen, and there never was a Yankee who went to England that they did not pinch to the extent of his purse. You cannot have things in that country as you get them here, nor can you expect to get on a holiday things as cheap as you would at any other time. If they charged you but twenty-five cents to hang up your hat, and as much more for a saucer of strawberries, you need not object. Keep your hat on and eat pie. There is a happy medium, and pie fills the bill."

BEST IN THE WORLD.

The Illustrated Lecture of Prof. Bolton Unsurpassed.

The most delightful entertainment which has been given in the city for a long time was the handsome illustrated lecture by Prof. Bolton, last evening. Nothing could be more instructive and entertaining.

Starting from London, the speaker was carried through the lands which encircle the North Pole. The cities, scenery, points of interest, people, houses, and animals, were illustrated by dissolving views, 25 feet square, accompanied a clear and minute explanation of each. The speaker possesses a pleasing voice and presents his facts in such a manner that they can be taken in and digested with pleasure. People who composed the audience last evening testify to the accuracy of many of the scenes shown by him. Nothing, it is said, enlarges the mind like reading or travelling. Prof. Bolton's exhibitions furnish the information of reading and travel combined.

The subject for this evening will be "London, the Metropolis of the World," which is said to be one of the most amusing and entertaining of the series that will be given. Apart from the lecture the views alone are well worth seeing. As already stated they are the finest in the world, having cost the owner something like $25,000
